

Get Rich: Sue your Medical Marijuana Doctor

Sure, you went to a licensed M.D. with a medical complaint and you were happy that he gave you a letter or card that authorized you to smoke marijuana without fear of being prosecuted for possession of pot. These doctors were happy to take your money, and have been making millions for doing this, probably with little concern or care about the other health effects associated with smoking pot.

If you've been damaged, now it's your turn to make "millions", and here's how:

The doctors that recommend you smoke marijuana probably were not even close to following the Standards of Care expected or required by state laws, state licensing requirements, medical accreditation boards, and civil courts.

Standards of Care:

- Is there documentation that the patient has had failure of all other conventional medications to treat his or her ailment? Have you counseled the patient (documented by the patient's signed informed consent) regarding the medical risks of the use of marijuana—at a minimum to include infection, pulmonary complications, suppression of immunity, impairment of driving skills, and habituation?
- Has the patient misused marijuana or other psychoactive and addictive drugs?
- Do you periodically provide drug testing of the patient who has been prescribed marijuana, and have patients been excluded from being prescribed marijuana who are found to be using other illicit drugs? Who does the drug testing and by what means?
- Is the use of smoked marijuana part of a study and/or will the monitoring of that use be under the supervision of an investigational review board?
- Have you carefully reviewed exactly which patients should be allowed to use this drug medicinally and for how long?

- Do you carefully examine and consistently follow up patients who use smoked marijuana as a medical treatment, including pulmonary function testing, evaluation of immune status, and the presence of any superadded infection?
- Have you exercised due care in assuring the standardization of the tetrahydrocannabinol potency content of the marijuana to be considered for medicinal use and whether it is free of microbial contaminants?
- Because marijuana is a federally controlled substance, has a system been established in the state to track all patients and their source of marijuana, as with other controlled substances? Are you complying with such requirements?
- Will you be required to be licensed by the state or federal government?
- Have you shown knowledge, training, or certification in addiction medicine? Do you have demonstrable knowledge of the physiologic effects of marijuana, its side effects, and its interaction with other drugs before prescribing it?

So, have you suffered from any of the hundreds of medically documented side effects of smoking pot?

For example, memory loss, anxiety, decrease in muscle strength, trouble with thinking and problem solving, coughs, bronchitis, fungus infections, cancer, panic attacks, depression, attention deficits, mental disease or conditions, auto accidents, injuries, inability to stop using, violent behavior, arrests, poor grades at school or college, inability to pass a drug test to get a job?

Well, now you can hold the doctor responsible for these conditions. Just find an attorney who's not too busy to file a lawsuit for the damages you have suffered. Even if you don't have money to pay the attorney, he can probably get an out-of-court damages settlement worth tens of thousands of dollars for you. These millionaire pot doctors don't want the publicity or the expense of trying to fight these claims; because they can't win..!!
